

Debbie Saviano is one of the three Founders of Women's Leadership LIVE and a well-known Social Media Design Strategist and expert in online influence. She began her career driving a yellow school bus and retired from education after serving as principal of five campuses, pre-K to high school. Debbie transitioned from a successful career in education to social media and believes that life is a combination of physical and virtual space and is all about building relationships!

Debbie and her partners were friends first before forming Women's Leadership LIVE in 2014. Speaking, consulting and conducting Women's Leadership LIVE events enables Debbie and her two partners, Linda McMahon and Stacey Schieffelin, to remain close to those interested in continuing to learn and who wish to excel in their own leadership journey. She believes we only have this "walk of life" but once and there are "no accidents". Each person has skills and expertise to serve others and building and maintaining relationships allows for a connection to be made and social media is a conduit to make it all happen.

Debbie is a popular public speaker and in recent years offered numerous online training programs. She enjoys helping others develop and maintain relationships through the power of contemporary ROI – Return on Influence via Social Media.
